There are many ways in which the Firecircle represents our real life experiences like when we shift planetary orbits. Stepping from one orbit to another can be quite tricky, especially if one is moving into the Mercury track. Not only are there speed variations but sometimes there can also be the added complication of changing directions at the same time. Often times this can be just as tricky as trying to merge onto a speeding highway, walking in the city, or even while pushing a shopping cart through the grocery store. In this playshop we will learn how to move through the Firecircle with ease and grace as we explore and practice methods for Merging and refine the Art of Shifting Planetary Orbits.
